

The Seventeenth Annual Metro Indianapolis Coalition for Construction Safety Anniversary and Awards Celebration

Burnie McGinnis Award

PURPOSE

The Burnie McGinnis Award is presented to a person rather than a company. It is the most prestigious award presented to a person by MICCS.

It is named after the father of Hoosier basketball legend and MICCS supporter George McGinnis. Burnie McGinnis died in a construction jobsite accident. To honor him and the thousands of other workers who have given their life in service to the industry, this award honors people who demonstrate an outstanding commitment to worker safety.

Because the award is so prestigious, it is not awarded every year. Rather, the judges decide from among those nominated if any rise to a very high level of commitment.

Examples of such commitment could be a person whose specific acts on a job site are meritorious. Other examples might include a person who has made a significant contribution to a safety program, achieved long-term safe performance, made safety related contributions to the industry or other indications of extraordinary commitment to safety. The award can be bestowed based upon a one-time act or a pattern of practice.

NOMINATIONS

To be considered for the award, a person must be nominated using the appropriate application. Self-nominations are allowed. MICCS will not disclose who made nominations nor will nominees be disclosed who are not winners of the award.

Any reasonable amount of supporting material can be enclosed with the application.

ENTRY DEADLINE

Five copies of the application and supporting material must be received by MICCS on or before FRIDAY, MARCH 19, 2010.
